Application for Internship in Brand Marketing – Face Care (Eucerin) – starting from January 1st, 2026

Dear Recruiting Team,

I am currently in the first semester of my Master's in International Business at WHU – Otto Beisheim School of Management. I would like to apply for the Brand Marketing Internship at Beiersdorf AG - Content & Campaign Management at DHL, and am available from January 2026 through August 2026.

I've always been fascinated by how strong brands are built, not just through creative ideas, but through a deep understanding of product value and consumer need. That's why I moved into marketing after beginning my academic career in the sciences. My internship at Henkel's global marketing team allowed me to work closely on brand campaigns and content development for an international audience. I learned how to adapt a brand's voice across markets and how to balance strategy with storytelling. But more importantly, I saw the impact of good brand marketing done right, when it's rooted in what people actually need and care about.

That's also what draws me to Eucerin. Having struggled with skin concerns myself, I know how much trust matters in this space. It's not just about trends; people are looking for solutions that work and for brands that communicate clearly and honestly. I'm especially excited by the opportunity to support product launches and marketing campaigns for a brand that combines clinical credibility with emotional relevance.

Beyond my marketing experience, I also bring an understanding of consumers from different angles. My degree in Biotechnology allows me to grasp technical product features and translate them into meaningful messaging. My experience in sales and psychology has trained me to identify consumer motivations, ask better questions, and think from the user's perspective. I enjoy connecting the dots between data and behavior, and I believe this mindset will help me contribute to Eucerin's positioning in a competitive and evolving skincare market.

This internship would be a meaningful next step in my marketing journey, and I would be thrilled to learn from the team at Beiersdorf while contributing with the curiosity, energy, and perspective I've built along the way.

Thank you very much for considering my application. I look forward to the possibility of speaking with you further.

Sincerely,
Shruthi Sankaranarayanan
