Application for Business Development Role – starting from May 1st, 2025

Dear Recruiting Team,

I am currently in the first semester of my Master's in International Business at WHU – Otto Beisheim School of Management, and I would like to apply for the Business Development position at LikeLouis and am available to start from May through July 2025.

My background in biotechnology and food technology has equipped me with a strong understanding of product development, innovation, and sustainability in the food and beverage industry. As a tea connoisseur, I have cultivated a passion for crafting mindful and health-conscious products, which aligns closely with LikeLouis's mission of transforming consumption through Europe's first hard kombucha.

At WHU, my coursework in International Strategy and Strategic Marketing has provided me with key frameworks for analyzing competitive markets and crafting innovative go-to-market strategies. Through case studies on global companies like Coca-Cola and Hindalco, I gained valuable insights into how business models and branding decisions can drive market leadership. These courses helped refine my analytical and structured approach to problem-solving—skills I am eager to bring to LikeLouis's business development initiatives.

In my role as Sales Team Lead at Pickyourtrail, I successfully managed a €2.6M annual revenue target by leveraging data analytics to identify market opportunities and automating processes to improve operational efficiency. I led a team to implement scalable strategies, tailored sales approaches to customer preferences, and maintained a 9/10 average customer satisfaction rating across 600+ interactions. This experience honed my ability to manage projects independently, adapt to dynamic environments, and collaborate effectively—all of which are critical for succeeding in a fast-growing startup like LikeLouis.

Additionally, my previous work involved developing structured solutions to address market challenges and improve customer satisfaction. These experiences, combined with my strong interest in the food and beverage industry, position me to take on the challenges of scaling a frontrunner in the alcoholic beverages space.

What excites me most about LikeLouis is the opportunity to collaborate directly with founders to drive strategy, optimize processes, and scale operations in an innovative and fast-paced environment. LikeLouis's commitment to sustainability, creativity, and health-conscious living aligns deeply with my personal and professional values.

Thank you for considering my application. I look forward to the opportunity to discuss how my skills and experiences can support LikeLouis's growth and contribute to its mission.

Sincerely,
Shruthi Sankaranarayanan
